Dean Again Implicates Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean III testified today he was sure that President Nixon not only knew about the Watergate cover-up as early as last fall but also helped try to keep the scandal quiet.

Outwardly calm, his voice hoarse after reading a statement to the Senate Watergate Committee Monday detailing his own knowledge and participation in the plot, Dean answered "That is correct" several times when asked if he was charging Nixon with complicity in a massive White House effort to cover up the Watergate scandal.

He said he became sure of the President's involvement Sept. 15, the day seven men — none of them White House officials — were indicted for the Watergate bugging, when the President called him in to congratulate him for his handling of the case.

"Did you have any doubt in your mind what the President was talking about?" asked Samuel Dash, the chief committee counsel.

No, I did not," Dean replied. "Therefore, Mr. Dean, what

Dean listened intently as the President, "And that the Dash attempted to summarize according to your statement, made, according to your tell of his involvement in some believed Haldeman had been Assistant Attorney General fully briefed on the bugging Henry E. Four Statements...Two Sides

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four key statements by President Nixon have been contradicted flatly by his former counsel, John W. Dean III.

Testifying Monday before the Senate's Watergate investigating committee, Dean swore Nixon knew of the cover-up, knew of payments to defendants and admitted twice that he discussed an offer of clemency. And he said Nixon persisted in the cover-up this spring despite Nixon's statement that he was trying to get all the facts.

Here is a comparison of what Nixon said and what Dean said:

COVER-UP: The President, in a statement issued May 22, said, "I took no part in, nor was I aware of, any... efforts that may have been made to cover up the Watergate."

Dean testified that he told Nixon Sept. 15, 1972, that he had assisted in keeping the case from reaching the White House. That was the day seven men were indicted, none higher in the Nixon re-election campaign than G. Gordon Liddy, the finance committee's chief lawyer.

Nixon and Dean met in the Oval Office, with presidential chief of staff H. R. Haldeman present, Dean said.

"The President told me I had done a good job and he appreciated how difficult a task it had been and the President was pleased that the case had stopped with Liddy," Dean said.

"I responded that I could not take credit because others had done much more difficult things than I had done. As the President discussed the present status of the situation I told him that all that I had been able to do was to contain the case and assist in keeping it out of the White House. I also told him that I thought that there was a long way to go before this matter would end and that I certainly could make no assurances that the day would not come when this matter would start to unravel."

CLEMENCY: Nixon also said May 22: "At no time did I authorize any offer of executive clemency for the Watergate defendants, nor did I know of any such offer."

Dean said Nixon told him on March 13 and again on April 15 that he had talked to former domestic advisor John D. Ehrlichman and former presidential counselor Charles W. Colson about an offer of clemency that Dean said was made to E. Howard Hunt, one of the men convicted in the case.

Haldeman was at the March 13 meeting in the Oval Office, Dean said. "The President... referred to the fact that Hunt had been promised executive clemency. He said that he had discussed this matter with Ehrlichman and... that Colson also discussed it with him later. He expressed some annoyance at the fact that Colson had also discussed this matter with him."

On April 15 Dean said he met with Nixon in his office in the Executive Office Building and advised Nixon he had begun to tell his story to federal prosecutors. "He got up out of his chair, went behind his chair to the corner... and in a barely audible tone said to me, he was probably foolish to have discussed Hunt's clemency with Colson."

While John Dean testifies, President Nixon remains mute and in seclusion. Story on page 5.

PAYOFFS: The President said May 22: "I did not know, until the time of my own investigation, of any effort to provide the Watergate defendants with funds."

Nixon's own investigation, according to a statement he made April 17, began March 21. But Dean said he told Nixon about payoffs at their March 13 meeting.

Dean said he told Nixon and Haldeman that demands for money were increasing. "I told the President about the fact that there was no money to pay these individuals to meet their demands. He asked me how much it would cost. I told him that I could only make an estimate that it might be as high as a million dollars or more. He told me that was no problem, and he also looked over at Haldeman and repeated the same statement."

Later in the conversation Nixon asked about money already paid to defendants, Dean said. "He asked me how this was done. I told him I didn't know much about it other than the fact that the money was laundered so it could not be traced and that there were secret deliveries."

NIXON'S INVESTIGATION: The President, in his April 1 statement and again in a television address to the nation April 30, said he began a new investigation of the wiretapping affair March 21 after new facts came to light. "I personally assumed the responsibility for coordinating intensive new inquiries into the matter, and I personally ordered those conducting the investigations to get all the facts and to report them directly to me, right here in this office," Nixon said in his address.

But Dean said, "In short, the President commenced no investigation at all. Rather, the President, Haldeman and Ehrlichman commenced to protect themselves against the unraveling of the cover-up."

Governor Signs Foster Care Bill

By WADE BURKHART

ALBANY Gov. Nelson Rockefeller has signed into law a bill which shifts the cost of educating foster children, providing a financial bonanza to the hard-pressed Ellenville Central School District, and a financial burden to the New York City schools.

The new law, chapter 867 of the laws of 1973, was signed into law by the Governor last Friday, but news of the signing was not released until late Monday.

The bill had been sponsored by Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-Woodstock) and State Senator Jay P. Rollison (R-Poughkeepsie).

While designed to cut the financial burden of school districts with large numbers of foster children, it will cost those school districts who have foster children sent elsewhere for their education. According to Bell's estimate, the new law carries a $20 million price tag for districts which send foster children to others. Both New York City and Westchester County — most of Ellenville's foster children come from Westchester — have large numbers of children in other school districts.

The new law should mean a savings, depending on the number of foster children in the district next year, of from $85,000 to $100,000 for Ellenville.

Sims (R-13th Ward) Smith was elected to the Council four years ago, defeating incumbent Joseph Conlin by a margin of 30 votes and was re-elected in 1971, defeating Paul Mills by more than 150 votes.

Smith said he will be moving out of the ward and will resign as alderman after the Aug. 7 meeting of the Common Council. "The August meeting will be my last one," Smith told The Freeman. The deadline for a candidate to withdraw from this fall's elections, while still allowing the respective (party) committees on vacancies to name replacements, is Aug. 23.

Smith said he has recommended the name of F. Joseph Markle of 45 Petit Avenue to the Republican Committee on Vacancies. Party Chairman Frank Fabbie said the committee will nominate Markle, a Third Ward committeeman for the past two years.

Smith emphasized that his moving out of the ward (and thus being ineligible for reelection) has nothing to do with a fatal accident on the Chandler Drive on April 27 into special session last night where Smith stands accused of driving while intoxicated. Grand jury action is pending on that case.

KINGSTON Now it's up to the federal government. The Common Council gave its unanimous approval Monday night to an amendment to Phase I of the Rondout Neighborhood Center, calling for the expenditure of an additional $33,000 on the project.

The Aldermen were called into special session last night by Mayor Francis R. Koenig where Smith stands accused of driving while intoxicated. Grand jury action is pending on that case.

Condominium Hearings Conclude,

The Department of Environmental Conservation concluded hearings Monday on the proposed construction of a condominium at the base of Hunter Mountain, and the accompanying discharge of storm drainage and sewage into the Schoharie Creek.

The DEC, charged with determining whether the development would cause "unreasonable and unnecessary degradation of the environment," is expected to announce within 90 days whether it will approve or deny the developer's application.

A long list of experts testified during the concluding session of the two-day hearing Monday, including representatives of the DEC, the New York State Health Department, the Bureau of Water Resources, a marine biologist and environmentalists. Snyder-Westerlind, Inc., a development firm from New Jersey, has proposed the construction of a 200-unit condominium and 70-unit motel on the banks of the Schoharie Creek. The developer seeks permission to discharge storm drainage and treated effluent into the creek.

Where it first appeared that the developer had abandoned original plans to discharge effluent into the creek, it is now certain that that is not the case at all. Testimony Monday revealed that the developer is still seeking permission to discharge sewage into the creek.

Opponents contend that the sewage, even when treated, would disrupt the ecological balance of the Schoharie Creek, considered one of the finest trout fishing streams in the state. Witnesses for the developer testified Monday that the sewage would be treated with chlorine; witnesses for the objectors testified that chlorine is poisonous, and would kill the fish and wildlife in the stream. Other objectors to the proposed development include the New York State Health Department, which has questioned the adequacy of the development's proposed water supply. Snyder-Westerlind intends to sink several wells to provide water for the condominium and motel; the health department said at Thursday's session, however, that some wells in the Hunter area do not meet the state's drinking water standards. The health department also questions whether the water supply would be sufficient for the proposed development. The attorney for the ecologists, Trout Unlimited and Theodore Gordon Flyfishers, the main objectors to the proposal, is Stanley Bryer, a New York City attorney who has a weekend home in Woodstock. Library Tour... Two Sites

KINGSTON. Members of the Kingston Area Library board of trustees took members of the Common Council, and the mayor, on a tour of two possible sites for a new library, the former Mid-City Lanes on Cornell Street and a building at 61 Albany Avenue, which formerly housed offices for IBM, prior to Monday night's special meeting of the Council.

The library is seeking $120,000 from the city in revenue sharing funds for the purchase and renovation of the bowling alley, but is now giving serious consideration to the Albany Avenue property. The selling price on that property is $195,000 (the Bowling alley will cost $150,000) but library trustees say they hope to get it for less.

According to Mrs. Rita Jackaway, President of the Board of Trustees, the Albany Avenue property is owned by a "Mr. Schaeffer" of Schenectady (she did not have his first name) who has been a patron of libraries in the Albany area. Schaeffer donated the money for the Albany Medical Center Library — it is named the Schaeffer Library — and money for the Union College library, Mrs. Jackaway said.

Mrs. Jackaway said space is comparable between the two buildings and indicated "that in terms of a public library" the Albany Avenue site "is even better" than the Cornell Street site. She said the Albany Avenue property is located in an area of heavy traffic, it is in "feasible walking distance" from Kingston High School and is on the city's only bus route. "And there's certainly enough parking for our purposes," she added.

The Common Council's Finance, Ways and Means Committee has not made a decision on the library's request for funds, but Mrs. Jackaway said the Board of Trustees feels that the proposal is being given "serious consideration."

Michael J. Cecelia, 23, of Walton Lane, Hurley, was taken into custody by Ulster County Sheriff's deputies Monday evening, four hours after the alleged theft occurred.

Arraigned before Hurley

Town Justice C. H. DuMont, Cecelia was released on $50 bail pending a reappearance today.

Meanwhile, sheriff's deputies arrested two youths on charges of criminal possession of stolen property in the third degree, after a chain saw taken from a Town of Ulster residence June 14 was allegedly found in their possession.

Arrested were Robert George Swehla, 17, of RD 3, Box 160, New Paltz, and Bruce Wayne Spelino, 16, of Route 1, Box 312, Ulster Park.

Both were arraigned before Town of Ulster Justice Arthur Reilly, and were confined in Ulster County Jail in lieu of $100 bail each, pending a reappearance on Wednesday.

Appeal Filed In Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — The president of a cemetery workers union, who refuses to abide by a back-to-work court order, has filed an appeal, postponing contempt proceedings against him.

Sam Cimaglia, president of the AFL-CIO Service Employees Local 365, contended in his appeal Monday that the state legislature violated the constitution by adopting special legislation to halt a strike and force the parties to submit to binding arbitration.

The hospitality did not end there either. Food and overnight lodging were provided through efforts of Marie Stewart, the local contact for the group. A friend of Joan Young, one of the leaders of the Wayfarers, Mrs. Stewart learned of their impending arrival Sunday night and spent all day Monday arranging with Andrew J. Murphy, city superintendent of recreation, and Louis DeCicco, city clerk for use of the municipal auditorium for the sleeping bag brigade.

Food was provided through the efforts of Mrs. Stewart, Margaret and David Kelder, Manny Castro and Irene Kline. Mrs. Stewart noted that at 4:30 p.m., they were still "scrounging" for provisions. The Rev. David C. Gaise, pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church where Mrs. Stewart has a Girl Scout Troop, lent a helping hand and much moral support.

The bikers arrived at the Dutchess County end of the span at 8 p.m. after a 101 mile day's ride from Weatherfield Conn. only to learn that bicycle and pedestrian traffic is banned from the Hudson River crossing. Then came the truck transportation rescue which entailed four trips. All was secure by 9:30 p.m. and by mid-morning today they were launched on another day's ride through the Catskills.

The Wayfarers under the direction of Omer Young, director of West Shore Youth for Christ in Michigan, are 47 strong. They are boys ages 13 to 19. Accompanying the bike line are two motorcycles for safety patrol and a truck driven by Mrs. Young. The motor vehicle serves as kitchen unit and gear storage.

THE FRENCH WAY — French Prime Minister Pierre Messmer points the way to the Pavillon d'Honneur at Orly Airport in Paris, France, for Soviet Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev moments after Brezhnev's arrival in the early morning hours today. Brezhnev will spend 2 days in France en route home to Moscow from his visit to America. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Hard Work at Summit Session, Time Will Tell About Progress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American peace collaboration the arsenals of the two subjects were discussed, there and also in view of the were three critical issues to be complexity of the problem, there was a tendency in Washington to consider the target date of 1974 as unrealistic.

—Trade. The Soviet Union appears likely to get what it wants, Nixon, in a trade agreement last year, promised Russia trade equality and credits under the "most favored nation" arrangement. However, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and 77 other senators have said they will not approve this concession unless the Soviet Union permanently abandons the high taxes on Jewish emigration to Israel. Indications are the legislators will change their minds now.

Brezhnev told them that failure to grant the trade concession, which he badly needs to secure U.S. equipment, technical know-how and credits, would make it necessary for him to drag his feet on major issues such as arms control.

Administration officials have pointed out to Jackson and Brezhnev, who asked for the present meeting. Since it represented a feather in the cap of France, everyone thought Pompidou was pushing for the meeting.

However, according to French officials, this country's main preoccupation is to prevent any U.S.-Soviet accord that would lead to a joint military pull-out from central Europe, creating a dangerous vacuum in a highly sensitive area.

They said France would agree to a suggested meeting of East-West heads of state only if the Helsinki conference on European security shows positive results.

Brezhnev Arrives in Paris

PARIS (UPI) — In an atmosphere of suspicion that contrasted sharply with his U.S. visit, Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev arrived in Paris today for two days of talks with President Georges Pompidou.

Prime Minister Pierre Messmer greeted Brezhnev at Orly Airport a few minutes after his arrival. The two men chatted briefly and Brezhnev then drove to Rambouillet, a 13th-century chateau where he will spend two days talking with Pompidou.

Despite American and Soviet expressions of progress toward relaxation of tensions, a French government spokesman took a suspicious attitude toward the Brezhnev summit meeting with President Nixon, stressing to newsmen that there was little prior consultation with the French.

France considers itself a leader in the movement to make the Soviet Union part of the European community. It was hurt that Moscow failed to give any hints of its plans to draw closer to Washington, diplomatic sources said.

Government officials emphasized that the set of international accords signed by Brezhnev and Nixon were not binding on France.

A Readjustment for Skylab Trio

HOUSTON (UPI) — The chief physician examining the Skylab 1 astronauts says the space trio is readjusting to Earth's gravity but scheduled another battery of medical tests today to determine the effects of their 28 days in a weightless condition.

Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz, down to the grind of post-flight work, also told engineers about the mission, highlighting the problems in the giant space station and their solutions.

Dr. W. Royce Hawkins, the astronauts' chief physician, said the pilots are showing continuous improvement in readjusting to Earth after prolonged weightlessness.

Conrad and Weitz were doing fine only a few hours after splashdown Friday, but Kerwin had problems with dizziness, lightheadedness and nausea for a number of hours. Kerwin, the first U.S. space doctor, said on his return to Houston he was fit and "space is kind to people."

Hawkins said the medical tests, including riding a stationary bicycle and lying in an iron lung-like device to test the muscular and cardiovascular systems, would continue until the astronauts returned to the same work level as before the 28-day mission.

The crew also continued the daily technical discussions, detailing step-by-step the flight. The debriefings concentrated on the activation of Skylab and all its systems and the irregularities of the craft. The agenda included a discussion of the sun shade parasol the astronauts erected over the space station their second day in orbit.

The next team of astronauts who are to visit Skylab late next month for a 56-day stay are to set up a different shade over the parasol to protect the station from the sun's searing rays. Engineers believe the material on the parasol might degrade before the end of the next two flights to Skylab.

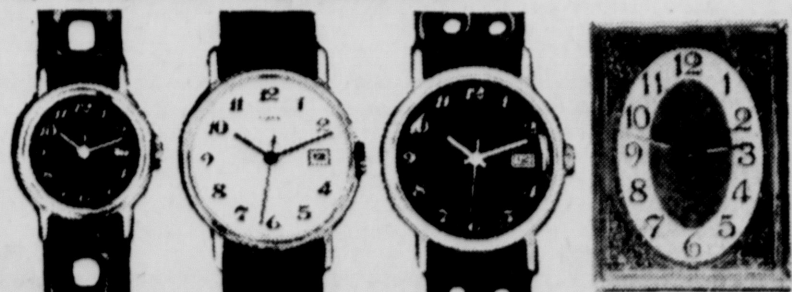

Flight controllers prepared for the Skylab 2 flight of Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma, running simulations Monday of the launch and docking with the space station.

Scientists, meanwhile, awaited their first view of the more than 30,000 pictures of the sun and 14,000 photos of Earth brought back by the Skylab 1 crew. The sun photos include man's first good look at a solar flare—an explosion on the sun—without the screening of earth's atmosphere.

Delamater House Listed As National Historic Site

RHINEBECK
The Henry Delamater House on Route 9, Rhinebeck has been accepted for listing in the National Register of Historic Places, according to an announcement by Alexander Aldrich, Parks and Recreation Commissioner.

Built in 1884 in the industrial and Victorian age, the house has been called "the supreme example of the American Gothic cottage" and "one of America's most photogenic homes," by Jane Davies, an expert on the architecture of Alexander Jackson Davis.

To the uninitiated, it is the "gingerbread" bedecked house set on a spacious lawn on the west side of Montgomery Street, presently owned and occupied by the Richard Crowleys.

A citation of the Delamater House in "Landmarks of Dutchess County, 1683-1867" comments, "A list of the architectural details of this charming house would read like a textbook for the proper design of cottages in the carpenters' Gothic manner."

Alexander Jackson Davis was commissioned to design the house by Henry Delamater, the founder of Rhinebeck's First National Bank.

The sketch continues, "Davis successfully incorporated many eye-catching features in the house: a center gable with a delicate ornamental barge-board and finial, a large porch with elaborate 'gingerbread' woodwork, diamond-paned windows, projecting bays, and paired chimney stacks. But it is the board and batten siding that integrates the various shapes and textures by emphasizing the verticality in them all."

Nixon Not Watching, But Keeps Informed

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon, apparently digging in to endure John Dean's Watergate testimony in silence, remained mute and in seclusion today.

The President does not watch the proceedings himself, a spokesman said, but is kept informed of Dean's testimony.

White House aides monitor the broadcasts and prepare daily summaries of the contents, the spokesman said. The Army Signal Corps tapes them for replay later if the President wants to see them.

Nixon himself huddled with his key advisors, including Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., and Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, for several hours Monday afternoon as Dean's statement stunned official Washington.

There were no indications that Nixon was prepared to defend himself immediately against the charges by Dean. Ziegler told reporters "We do not plan to have a comment as the Ervin Committee proceeds."

Ziegler said that Nixon planned no press conferences. Not only did they lay the foundations for greater cooperation in the political, military and economic spheres, Nixon and Brezhnev also made plans for their third summit meeting in Moscow next year.

The President has not had a news conference since March 15. Ziegler said several weeks ago that Nixon was planning to meet reporters "very soon."

After a temporary reprieve of one week, during the visit of Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, Watergate was again engulfing the White House.

The President and Brezhnev held their week-long summit in a remarkably amiable atmosphere that made the Cold War a thing of the past.

Their joint communique, issued as Brezhnev departed the United States Monday, pledged that both countries would push ahead on nuclear arms curbs, troop reductions in Europe and trade expansion.

The highlight of their talks, according to both leaders, was their agreement to avoid military confrontations and risks that could lead to a nuclear holocaust.

GOLD CACHE DISCUSSION — Reports of a multi-million dollar Aztec treasure supposedly buried on a rocket range in New Mexico came up before the Watergate hearing on Monday. The gold cache was alluded to by President Nixon's fired counsel, John W. Dean III (UR), when he described a luncheon meeting that included former Attorney General John Mitchell (UL) and H. R. Haldeman (LR). White House chief of staff, Dean said Mitchell raised fact that criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey (LL) "had a problem he would like to bring up" concerning a client who wanted to turn over an enormous amount of gold to the government. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Tough Decision Ahead For John Mitchell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For John N. Mitchell, a loyal Nixon lieutenant for a decade, the crunch comes this week—whether to remain loyal to the President and the President's men who allegedly want him to take the rap for Watergate.

Ten days ago, Jeb Stuart Magruder told the Senate Watergate Committee that Mitchell as late as this spring was still sticking to the cover-up story devised to hide his and other high-level involvement in the affair.

Monday, John W. Dean III corroborated that account and added a new wrinkle—testifying that Nixon and his closest advisers were plotting at that same time to pin the blame for the bizarre bugging on Mitchell to save themselves.

It will be Mitchell's turn at the witness table later this week, probably beginning on Thursday. Staff investigators hope to learn at a preliminary interview with him tonight whether Dean's testimony hinting of betrayal will have goaded the former attorney general and Nixon campaign manager into breaking ranks at last.

Mitchell's testimony, in short, will be critical to whether Dean's can be believed.

The Rev. Daniel Brent, superintendent of schools for the Rochester Diocese, said four schools were closed in that diocese last year and the decision will speed up the process.

The problem is that we risk the loss of some of our greatest strengths," Fr. Brent said, "that is, the neighborhood school concept, local identification and extensive use of parent volunteers."

Since 1967-68, a total of 149 parochial schools in the state have closed — including 42 last year—partly due to a policy of consolidation and partly due to the phasing out of Catholic schools in some communities because of financial problems.

Davitt said the decision will speed up this process of consolidation.

Belt Tightening for Catholic Schools

By UNited Press International

The U.S. Supreme Court's decision knocking down state aid to parochial schools and parents' sacrifices and difficult decisions mean more belt tightening for the already financially hard-pressed Roman Catholic school system, according to Catholic school officials across the state.

Cardinal Terence Cooke of the Archdiocese of New York said the decision was a "step to deny the freedom of choice to all but the affluent."

Cardinal Cooke, in a statement released from his New York office, said the decision was "a terrible blow at our traditional of freedom" to decide how our children will be educated.

The decision will not mean the end of non-public education in the state, however, but will speed up the process of consolidation and centralization that has been underway for the last few years, according to Catholic school officials across the state.

For Catholic parents, school officials say, it will mean more sacrifices and difficult decisions as to how much they feel a church school education for their children is worth.

The Supreme Court ruled unconstitutional Monday five provisions of state law that appropriate up to $72 million to non-public schools or the parents of private school pupils. In New York State, Catholic schools educated 588,890 pupils during the 1972-73 school year.

The programs ruled in violation of the constitutional separation of church and state include:

—The mandated services law which provided up to $28 million a year for testing, record-keeping and other services required by the state.

—Funds for building repair and maintenance which total up to $4 million a year.

—Tuition grants for low-income families, totaling between $5 and $25 million.

—State income tax credits for at least $50 in tuition for families with a gross income between $5,000 and $25,000, estimated to cost from $10 to $15 million for the 1972 tax year.

The Rev. Thomas J. Costello, superintendent of schools for the Syracuse Diocese and the most damaging aspect of the decision "could be its effect on the debate at a federal level in terms of federal income tax credits."

Fr. Costello said the decision could close the door to federal tax credit legislation proposed by President Nixon.

J. Alan Davitt, executive secretary of the State Council of Catholic School Superintendents, said the immediate effect on the state's parochial schools will be minimal.

The largest state payment directly to schools effected by the decision was the $28 million in mandated services payments.

However, parochial schools have only $12 million was paid out the 1971-72 school year when before a court injunction halted further distribution of the funds.

Davitt said the decision is mainly "a problem for the parents... and it just might awaken a lot of people."

He said the decision "means that our freedom of choice has been curtailed; the continuation of our plurality of educational opportunity will depend on the decisions that the parents will make."

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JUNE 26, 1973

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — In the name of better understanding between government and industry, the Nixon Administration has been quietly planting business executives in key government positions where they can help their companies.

Any big corporation, which wants to keep on the good side of government, would like to have an inside man working in the government policy councils. President Nixon provided this opportunity for several corporations by setting into motion the President's Commission on Personnel Interchange in 1969.

The purpose, of course, was presented in noble terms. There would be an exchange of executives between government and industry to bureaucratic ropes and, thereby, to promote understanding.

The Commission has been used by the big corporations, however, as a Trojan Horse to infiltrate the government. At least 50 top business executives will be placed this summer in government jobs where they may be able to influence decisions affecting their companies.

Treasury Plant

Phillips Petroleum, for example, has already planted Robert Bowen inside the Treasury Department office which deals with oil and energy problems. Another oil executive, Tenneco's Ed Bridges, is working on East-

West trade at the Commerce Department. The oil companies, of course, have a multi-million-dollar stake in East-West trade. Here are other examples from the Commission's internal files:

— The Bank of America tried to place Joe Mason, "a bright young attorney," on the potent Securities and Exchange Commission. Wrote the bank's assistant vice president, T. M. Quigg: "A year's tour with the (SEC) would be extremely beneficial to Mr. Mason." The SEC has been approached, we're told, about taking Mason.

— From Coca-Cola headquarters in Atlanta, Coke's Director of Taxes, Paul Dillingham, wrote the Commission: "We would very much like to participate in the Interchange Program provided the nominee from our company can be placed in the U.S. Treasury. . . . The Commission and Coke, however, quarrelled over the conditions of the placement, and the application was withdrawn.

— The prestigious accounting firm, Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co., also had specific ideas where it wanted to place a young executive named David Cole. "We prefer," wrote the firm's James Smith, "that Mr. Cole be placed in either of the following positions: (a) As an assistant to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. . . . (b) As a member of the staff of the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury for Tax Policy, Mr. Frederic W. Hickman." The firm, however, may have to settle for a placement at the SEC.

Reverse Exchange

— In a reverse exchange, the Pacific-Sierra Research Corp. hired on loan from Wright-Patterson Air Force Base a specialist who was immediately put in charge of a research project that the company wants the military to fund. The company president, Frank Thomas, specified that he wanted to hire William J. Parker under the exchange program. A cursory review by the Air Force found the loan of Parker to Pacific-Sierra would create "no problem involving a conflict of interest." Yet only two weeks later, Parker reported to the Commission: "I will be the program director for a major research effort currently under negotiation with DoD Defense Department)."

The Commission's chief matchmaker, whose job it is to wed big business with big government, is Jay Leanse, himself an ex-businessman. Less than a year on the job, the soft-spoken Leanse finds his staff in revolt, his budget $70,000 in the hole and his Chief White House sponsor John Ehrlichman, in political disgrace.

Insiders also charge that Leanse has mishandled a most unusual "educational" fund. This fund, totalling over $60,000, comes not from Congress but from the corporations and federal agencies participating in the program.

For every participant in the program, the sponsor is billed $1,000 to cover "educational" expenses. These expenses last year included everything from a $463 wine-and-cheese party to a $6,500 bill for brochures which the government refused to print as too gaudy.

Paid Honeymoon
Leanse has promised to explain to us how his chief assistant, Michelle Vale Sender, was able to earn a full week's salary last April while honeymooning in South America. Mrs. Sender's time card shows her either in the office or traveling on business. Leanse, admitting there may have been some oversight, claims Mrs. Sender is "very loyal." She must be if her records are accurate. On the day Mrs. Sender got married, her time card shows she worked eight hours. Mrs. Sender herself was unavailable for comment. Leanse explained she is on leave, traveling in Europe.

Footnote: Leanse told my associate, Mike Kiernan, that he's trying to carry out the exchange program's lofty purposes. Although he acknowledged that three times more executives are going into government than there are bureaucrats on loan to business, Leanse said he is seeking "a better balance." In the case of Robert Bowen, Treasury officials assured us he "will not take part in policy decisions nor will he have access to individual company data."

Public Will Pay

As the U. S. Postal Service was near a two-year agreement with postal workers, Francis Filby, national president of the American Postal Workers Union, representing 315,000 workers, commented at a press conference, "The public will apparently have to pay the bill." That is not a very cheerful note for the public to contemplate when the mood is one of strong disappointment in the mail service.

Filby said he was basing his observation on a remark made public by Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen that "in all likelihood" the Postal Service would ask the Postal Rate Commission in September for permission to raise the first-class mail rate from eight cents to 10 cents beginning in January. His statement appeared in an interview in which he said he expected the two-cent raise to produce $1 billion.

The present base pay ranges from $7,300 a year for custodians to $10,907 for clerks and letter carriers. The tentative agreement would provide for wage increases slightly over the 5.5 per cent annual guideline, cost-of-living pay adjustments every six months, increased contributions to health and insurance benefits and retention of a no lay-off clause.

With first class mail at 10 cents an ounce, how many billion dollar increases does the Postal Service expect to lay on a helpless public? The Postal Service, a quasi public corporation, was created to bring business policy, efficiency and economy into the mail business. It was to speed the mail through mechanization and short cuts. Above all, it was to separate the postal service from politics, and relieve Congress of the pressure of organized labor.

What have we got? A postal rate that has climbed faster than it did in the days of political influence. Mail delivery that boasts of 24-hour service and gives 36- and 48-hour delivery. The mechanization that was to bring economy has brought confusion. The eight-cent letter—itsself raised a while back—soon is to be the 10-cent letter. A 20 per cent inflation. Will the Cost of Living Council approve that, or is a quasi-government corporation above the law?

Trains Gain on Jets

It is only on one passenger route, the 226 miles between New York and Washington, that trains are gaining ground on jetliners. This can mean that they may also, on other routes in other populous areas, given the same or similar treatment. In this case, the treatment is the fast and comfortable Metroliners.

The Federal Aviation Administration study, the basis of the report, showed that rail riders between the two cities jumped 18.6 per cent last year, while airline patronage increased only three per cent. The majority of travelers still prefer jetliners to trains—last year 2.2 million rode the airliners while 854,000 took the trains—but trains increased their share of the combined air-rail-passenger market from 25 per cent to 27 per cent between 1971 and 1972, reversing a long trend in the opposite direction.

The New York-Washington one-way coach fare by air is $26; by bus, $11; by conventional train, $11.25; and by Metroliner $19. No effort was made to measure the impact of the Metroliner on travel by buses or private cars. Previous studies indicated that more than 80 per cent of the trips on the route are in private autos. Bus travel figures are not available.

For the travelers who are still afraid to travel by air or prefer to travel by train, the fact that rail travel has reversed the trend on this route is encouraging. Trains may be on the way back.

MIXED UP MONITOR—An electrocardiogram monitoring device has been recalled from 50 hospitals throughout the country. It is, in effect, a control board on which the heartbeat of up to six patients can be observed at one time and the wrong patients were reported in danger on occasion. The erring monitors were voluntarily recalled before any serious mixups resulted.

SLIP FREES CONVICTED MURDERERS—Because a District Court prosecutor compared two defendants, who had pled insanity, to such prominent murderers as Richard Speck and Jack Ruby, the U. S. Court of Appeals in Washington, D. C., reversed their convictions. Justice may be well served but this doesn't discourage murderers.

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

In the general enthusiasm to derogate Mr. Nixon and all his works and all his family, we are seeing more frequent references to his two brothers, who are the alleged beneficiaries of Mr. Nixon's prominence, in the case of one of them dating back to the early 1950s. We have been enjoined to abjure "quoqueism." So's your old man is, it is true, both too easy as arguing, and too unsatisfying as morality. However, if we are in the process of evolving a fresh code for American presidents, or for American public officials, it is worthwhile reflecting on what the old code was; or, put differently, how lackadaisically it was observed.

It is in this connection that Miss Rosalie Gordon, who did the research for a spirited polemic by John P. Flynn published two dozen years ago, reminisces about the family of the president who above all men in this century with the exception of the brief sunburst from Massachusetts, bedazzled America's lords spiritual and intellectual. F.D.R. was, for instance, a stamp collector, and he asked his Postmaster General to give him imperforate first sheets of new stamp issues for himself and a few friends. One such sheet turned up in Virginia and the owner asked $20,000 for it. In panic, the Post Office ran off a large number of imperforate sheets to dilute the singularity of the first set. But F.D.R. caused the Bureau of Printing and Engraving to deliver to him alone a number of original die proofs. After his death, these die proofs sold for $39,000, which went into F.D.R.'s estate.

While F.D.R. was governor, his son James got a job at $15,000 per year. He said later, "I wasn't being kidded. I knew perfectly well they were paying me for my name. I . . . needed the money." When the family entered the White House, James became a partner in the insurance firm of Roosevelt and Sargent, which solicited and wrote insurance for some of the biggest corporations in America that had business with the government. By 1939, James was making $100,000 per year, $25,000 more than his old man was making as President.

Elliott Roosevelt's experiences were similar, as was his income.

Eleanor was something else. She went on radio, for fees, to sponsor toilet preparations. She got $1,000 per week from a group of Latin American coffee producers to talk up coffee. When candy manufacturers during the war became concerned that their product might be classed as "non-essential," they got Mrs. F.D.R. to make three appearances on their radio program at $1,500 for the first two and $2,500 for the third.

But personal greed aside, what about the sanctity of the democratic process? Harry Hopkins had more money even than CREP at his disposal: over three billion dollars in WPA money. Anxious to purge those who had opposed F.D.R.'s court packing plan, he used this money quite forthrightly, for instance in favor of Alben Barkley over Happy Chandler in Kentucky. Republicans on the rolls were told simply to change their registration.

The conscription of the regulatory agencies in the uses of Presidential power was routine. A Congressional committee investigating the corruption of the FCC by the Office of War Information concluded: "OWI had the men and the material. It had the proper dye to color the news. It also had the desire to select and censor the news. What it lacked was the power, or perhaps more accurately stated, even the color of power, to carry their designs into effect. Hence the need to enlist the Federal Communications Commission in its purpose."

the FCC (had) the power to license and hence the power to compel obedience to its directions. The record now shows their unlawful use of this power. The FCC's subsidiary "division was not formed to instruct or supervise, or to correct. It was formed with the avowed purpose of unlawfully liquidating all of the radio personnel in the foreign language field that did not meet with its favor. A real Gestapo was created and a lawless enterprise was launched."

And so on. The sooner that kind of thing ceases the better, and if it is going to stop with the Nixon Administration, why that will be one of its singular achievements.

The Professionalism of Brezhnev

By MARTIN F. NOLAN
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — Even without a week of John Dean's televised testimony, the visit of Leonid Brezhnev proved one thing: the general chairman of the Communist party of the Soviet Union is a better politician than the titular head of the Republican party of the United States.

Brezhnev made President Nixon a wallflower in mugging for the camera, but, more importantly, he showed in his definition of goals that he has a keener understanding of people and politics than his American counterpart.

A quarter-century ago Brezhnev was a Stalinist thug, mouthing paranoid insults about America, warning against capitalist plots to destroy and dominate Russia. A quarter-century ago Nixon was an Orange County Congressman, denouncing President Truman for being soft on communism and demanding a get-tough attitude on domestic "subversives" in the name of "national security."

After decades of cold-war lessons and detente who has changed more? Who has a firmer grasp on the realities of foreign policy? Who still gives more primacy to the demands of "national security"?

After all the accords, protocols and proclamations are swept away, one central fact about world diplomacy stands out vividly: armies, navies, and the atomic bomb are not as important as the private preferences of consumers.

That dreadful phrase, "an era of trade," sounds so soothingly dull and relaxing for Americans, when actually it signals an era of increased self-discipline and austerity. The reason Richard Nixon is President is due in part to his steady subscription to the tenets of the American dream: maintain a strong defense against atheistic godless communism, let 'em know that we'll "nuke" them if they "nuke" us, and most of all maintain faith in the American free enterprise system. Bigger and better Cadillacs are the rewards of the just.

But now, this is the age of realizing the finiteness of the American continent and the planet. The ecology crisis, the energy crisis, will now naturally be followed by a trade crisis.

All those Datsuns, Toyotas and Volkswagens are tribute to the Japanese and German economies and a curse on American self-indulgence, the fondness for gas-guzzling V-8s and even more voracious B-52s.

In entering into "an era of trade" the Russians have a head start because they are accustomed to privation.

Their economic theories are inferior because their economy is poorer. They are burdened with Karl Marx's phobias even as Mr. Nixon is haunted by the hoggoblins of the "addiction" of economic controls.

But Brezhnev has the upper hand because he at least knows what he wants and what the Russian people want — more wheat, more technological expertise in agriculture and transportation.

What do the American people want? Does President Nixon know? He cannot speak or even defend himself because of "national security," an argument that apparently is aimed against people like Brezhnev.

When the Soviet leader left a meeting with U.S. Congressmen in Washington, one Republican senator muttered to another that he had just spent more time with Brezhnev than he ever had with Nixon.

Mark another score for Brezhnev. He now knows more about Nixon in one week than the American people do after 25 years.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION
Power Authority of the State of New York
NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR LICENSE FOR UNCONSTRUCTED PROJECT
(June 7, 1973)

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that application for a major license under the Federal Power Act (16 U.S.C. 791a) was filed on March 30, 1973, by the Power Authority of the State of New York (P.A.S.N.Y.) for the proposed project consisting of: Mr. Asa George, General Manager and Chief Engineer, Power Authority of the State of New York, 10 Columbus Circle, New York, New York 10019, to: Mr. John C. Mason, Esquire, Morgan, Lewis & Bockius, 1140 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036 for the proposed Break-Even pumped storage Project No. 2728. The project would be located on Schoharie Creek, tributary of the Mohawk River, in Schoharie County, New York, near the Towns of Bainham, Fulton, and Gilboa. The proposed project would affect the interests of interstate or foreign commerce.

Applicant, a municipality within the meaning of Section 3(7) of the Federal Power Act, proposes to construct and operate hydroelectric facilities comprising a pumped storage development having a capacity of one million kilowatts. Applicant states that the power developed at the project would be used for public utility purposes to meet projected power needs within New York State, with approximately 300 megawatts of project capacity expected to be utilized by the Metropolitan Transit Authority.

The proposed pumped storage project would consist of: (1) an upper reservoir enclosed on three sides by a 105 foot high and 9,800-foot long earth and rock-fill embankment and on the fourth side by a natural ridge with a water surface area of 216 acres and storage capacity of 13,000 acre-feet, of which 11,900 acre-feet would be usable storage between elevation 1,920 and 1,985 feet; (2) an ungated automatic circular weir which would operate as a water inlet and outlet, located in the southeast portion of the upper reservoir; (3) a concrete-lined vertical 1,000 foot long pressure shaft, a 6,150 foot long horizontal tunnel and manifold, all 28.5 feet in diameter, and four 500 foot long, 13-foot diameter pressure tunnels to provide passageway for water between the pumping-generating units and the upper reservoir; (4) a lower reservoir created by a 75 foot high and 1,800 foot long earth and rock-fill dam across Schoharie Creek with a concrete-lined chute spillway containing 42.5 foot wide by 40 foot high tainter gates, having a storage capacity of 3,300 acre-feet (11,900 acre-feet of usable storage between elevations 765 and 780 feet) with 1,020 acres of surface area; (5) an underground powerhouse located on the west side of the lower reservoir which would contain four generator-motor units rated at 250,000 kilowatts when operated as generators and about 420,000 horsepower when operated as motors; (6) step-up transformers located in the plant and connected through a system of disconnects and gas insulated high voltage busses to underground cables extending to the switchyard; (7) a switchyard located on the east bank of Schoharie Creek immediately downstream from the dam; and (8) 2.3 miles of 138 kV transmission lines which would share a common right-of-way extending 4.4 miles in a southeasterly direction from the switchyard to a junction with the existing Gilboa-New Scotland transmission line and thereafter utilizing existing rights-of-way for transmission lines of Applicant's Blenheim-Gilboa Pumped Storage Project No. 2655.

Recreation areas and facilities, including a boat ramp, constant level pools, fishing areas, hiking trails, fishing piers, and other related facilities for use by the public, are proposed for construction on lands to be acquired by Applicant and in part by agencies of the United States. Any person desiring to be heard or to make protest with reference to said application should on or before August 15, 1973, file with the Federal Power Commission, Washington, D.C. 20426, petitions to intervene or protests in accordance with the requirements of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10). All protests filed with the Commission will be considered by it in determining the appropriate action to be taken but will not serve to make the protestants parties to a proceeding or to participate as a party in any hearing held by the Commission. Committee Clears Sinatra, Davis Jr.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Select Crime Committee Monday concluded that entertainers Sammy Davis Jr. and Frank Sinatra and the Emprise Corp. are not directly involved in organized crime.

A committee report, the first of four to be issued before the committee ceases to exist on June 30, also recommended that interference with horse races be made a federal crime.

Much of the report centered on the activity of Emprise Corp., a Buffalo, N.Y. firm which has invested in legal gambling ventures, and what it called "celebrities as fronts."

"Because neither could say no to a good business deal, entertainers Sammy Davis Jr. and Frank Sinatra each found himself the unwitting front in corrupt racing schemes orchestrated by middle men with close ties to major racketeers," the report said.

It also said Emprise "has done business with individuals designated by public authority or authorities as organized crime figures, and that Emprise Corp. knew, or should have known, at the time it did business with such persons" that they were so designated or at least had organized crime reputations.

"The committee has not had evidence, however, nor does it find that Emprise Corp. has itself been a part of organized crime," it added.

Chairman Claude Pepper, D-Fla., said he was not aware of any connection between Emprise and organized crime since 1968, shortly before the death of Louis M. Jacobs, its founder.

But Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., a member of the committee, disputed Pepper and said that as late as 1971, Emprise was involved with an identified Mafia figure in a business trust.

"I would have preferred or welcomed a suggestion by the committee that as a result of its relationship with organized crime that Emprise not be licensed for pari-mutuel betting in states where pari-mutuel betting is legal," Steiger said.

"I still think Emprise is doing business with organized crime," Steiger said he concluded from the committee's hearings and from files of the committee. "The committee heard no evidence the relationship that was ongoing in any way was diminished by the demise of Mr. Jacobs."

The committee recommended that Congress pass a law making it illegal to tamper, interfere with or manipulate in any way the outcome of a race. It would set fines up to $10,000 or imprisonment for 20 years or both.

Area Youth Is Arrested

PORT EWEN — A Port Ewen youth was arrested early today by sheriff's deputies on a felony trespass charge after he allegedly entered the room of an 18-year-old girl in a private residence.

After reportedly attempting to keep the young woman from screaming by holding his hand over her mouth, the youth fled the scene, deputies reported.

Vincent J. Gregory, 17, of 118 East Stout Avenue, Port Ewen, was arrested at his residence approximately one hour after the incident on a charge of criminal trespass in the second degree.

Deputies said Gregory allegedly entered the Howard Galbreth residence, 195 Park Lane, through the basement door at approximately 3 a.m. When he allegedly entered the young woman's room, she awoke screaming, and the youth fled the scene after unsuccessfully trying to quiet her by holding his hand over her mouth, according to deputies.

Arraigned before Esopus Town Justice Andrew Aurigemma, Gregory was confined in Ulster County Jail in lieu of $500 bail pending a reappearance on Thursday.

Betty said he slipped as he entered the waters of the American River in the Mother Lode and his hand came down on a shiny rock. The "rock" was the nugget, 2-inches by 3-inches. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Douse Blaze

KINGSTON — City firefighters doused a blaze Monday afternoon in the brake linings of a fuel oil tanker truck. Firemen were called to Wurts Street where the driver of the vehicle, Arthur Miller of Newburgh, had stopped after noticing the fire. The truck was owned by Provan Transportation Company of Newburgh. Carbon dioxide extinguishers were used to quell the blaze, which reportedly started due to overheating of the brakes, firemen said.

ELLENVILLE — A one-car auto accident in the Village of Ellenville early today resulted in a power outage of several hours for several hundred area residents.

Ellenville Village Police reported that Donald Stubblebine, 34, of Nanonoch, was proceeding south on Route 209 at 6:40 a.m. when he apparently blacked out and struck a utility pole. Stubblebine was taken to Ellenville Community Hospital where he was reported to be in fair condition.

A Central Hudson spokesman indicated the power outage, which affected some 500 to 600 customers, lasted less than 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, an 11-year-old Accord boy sustained injuries Monday afternoon when he reportedly rode his bicycle from behind a parked car into the path of a vehicle driven by Ardye Saunders, 48, also of Accord.

Bruce Lee, of Box 226, Accord, was treated and released at Benedictine Hospital following the mishap, which occurred on Main Street, Ellenville. State Police investigated the accident.

A Million Protest Letters to Congress

FDA Proposed Restriction on Vitamin Sales Brings Mail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress has been deluged by an avalanche of mail in the past few months in response to a government attempt to place restrictions on the sale of vitamins.

As many as one million letters have poured into the offices of senators and representatives on the vitamin issue, most of them urging support for proposed legislation to force the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to abandon its plan to place restrictions on vitamins, minerals and other food supplements.

The FDA has said its restrictions are aimed at protecting the public welfare. Opponents of the restrictions disagree, saying that if the new rules are put into effect many vitamin products may disappear from the market.

There are several aspects to the FDA's proposal, but the one which seems to have triggered the most controversy says that any vitamin, food supplement or food containing more than 150 per cent of the recommended daily allowance (RDA) of any vitamin shall be classified as a drug.

Once so classified, such products can continue to be sold over the counter the way cough medicines and aspirin are now, but as drugs they would be subject to review by the FDA, which can decide whether they should be put on a prescription basis or banned entirely.

Vitamins A and D in doses over 150 per cent of the RDA will be available only by prescription because, according to the FDA, high doses of those two can "cause serious harm." But A, D and all others will continue to be available in smaller doses, allowing anyone who desires, the FDA contends, to duplicate the impact of high-dose pills by swallowing a handful of the less potent ones.

In addition, no vitamin product can make nutritional claims for, or be combined with, substances which the FDA says have no "scientifically recognized nutritional value." This may spell the end for some products where vitamins are combined with other substances.

Clinton R. Miller, lobbyist for the National Health Congress, the organization responsible for most of the letters to Congress, estimates that perhaps 90 per cent of the combination products will have to be reformulated. Miller said an unknown number may disappear because they cannot offer proof of nutritional value.

The FDA could not estimate how many products on the market will fall into the drug class if the regulation goes into effect next January.

Legislation to block the FDA action has been introduced by Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., but is bogged down in a commerce subcommittee, and does not appear likely to be reported out soon, if at all.

Miller admits to being somewhat surprised at the outpouring of mail from the public. His organization, headquartered in Monrovia, Calif., claims a membership of 20,000 and describes itself as a force for "responsible, informed health freedom."

Ticonderoga May Be Near End of Line

SAN DIEGO (AP)—The giant carrier Ticonderoga, which launched the last bombing strikes of World War II and the first against North Vietnam, may die soon — her last major mission the rescue of Skylab's astronauts.

A team of Navy ship experts was assigned to begin an inspection today that is expected to mean the end of the "Tico" as a sea-going warrior.

As she steamed home Sunday, the 42,000-ton vessel bore the capsule used by the three Skylab astronauts in their historic 28 days in space.

Aboard were 1,300 sailors and officers unwilling to say the Tico, despite 29 years and a rusting underbelly, will never sail again.

"This is a pretty old ship," conceded Storekeeper Jay Allen, 20, of Imperial Beach, Calif. "Some of the compartments are terrible, though. The mattresses are thin. The linen is dirty, and you can't get it clean. And some of the air conditioning is messed up."

"But it's a pretty good ship, and the people get along."

In a brief speech of thanks Sunday, Astronaut Joseph Kerwin said he was a 12-year-old boy growing up when the Ticonderoga was commissioned and "it makes me damned proud" to be aboard.

The Ticonderoga, the fourth U.S. ship to be named for the Revolutionary War battle in upstate New York, first sailed May 8, 1944, for the Far East and there her planes attacked Japanese ships and airfields in the Philippines.

On Jan. 21, 1945, in the South China Sea en route to Formosa, the carrier was hit by two Kamikaze planes whose bombs exploded, starting a huge fire that killed or wounded more than 200 men.

Capt. Dixie Kiefer, the skipper, stayed on the bridge to oversee the care of men injured like himself. He allowed them to take him to sick bay 12 hours after the attack.

After two months of repairs, the Tico returned to the final five months of the war.

The carrier was back in action in 1964, hurling the first U.S. air strikes against North Vietnam. In 1969 she was assigned to shipyards for conversion as an antisubmarine carrier and then training duties until becoming the recovery ship for the Apollo 16 moon landing. Last Dec. 19, the Ticonderoga picked up the men of Apollo 17, the final scheduled manned lunar mission.

London Times Ad Seeks 10-Year Ban on Killing of Whales

LONDON (UPI) — An advertisement signed by some of the world's leading ocean experts, conservationists and members of royalty appeared in The London Times this week urging a 10-year ban on the killing of whales.

Publication of the ad coincided with the start of a meeting of the International Whaling Commission IWC in London to discuss such a moratorium.

Among the signers of the newspaper ad were Britain's Prince Philip, Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, underwater explorer Jacques Cousteau and Thor Heyerdahl of "Kon Tiki" fame.

Meeting last year in Oslo, the IWC—which has imposed bans on the killing of some whales—nonetheless rejected a call by its American and British members to put an end to the killing of all whales.

The majority view, backed by the scientific committee of the IWC, was that regulation by types and stocks was the only practical method of conserving the species.

IWC sources said, however, there was a possibility that the fin whale might be added to the list of types already banned from killing by the IWC. The commission has already declared a moratorium on the bowhead, grey and right whales.

The Americans, supported by the British, want this ban extended for 10 years to the three types of baleen whale—fin, sei and minke—and to the sperm whale as well.

Dr. Ray Gambell of the Whale Research Unit of Britain's National Institute of Oceanography told a news conference last week that stocks of the fin whale are so depleted that it would take 23 years to replenish them even if its killing were halted immediately.

Gambell, who is also a member of the IWC's scientific committee, said, however, that he was much more optimistic about the future of the whale as a species. "I believe reports that whales as a species are in danger of extinction are exaggerated," he said.

The IWC at its London meeting will also receive a committee report on the likelihood of the non-member whaling countries of the world joining the commission.

These are chiefly Chile, Peru, Ecuador, Brazil, Spain, Portugal and South Korea. Altogether, these countries are responsible for six per cent of the world's annual whale catch.

The IWC will also discuss whether to set up a permanent secretariat. Since it was established in 1946, the IWC's clerical duties have been performed mainly by British civil servants recruited mostly from the ministry of agriculture and fisheries.

Glenn Turner Passing Time In German Cell

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — Glenn W. Turner preached the American dream with the fervor of an evangelist, exhorting his followers to join him on the road to success.

A South Carolina sharecropper with the flair of a super-salesman, he created a wide-ranging business empire that once embraced 70 separate companies and some said his personal wealth was in excess of $150 million.

But his methods of operation have been questioned by legal authorities across the United States, resulting in at least 40 indictments and a lien for $10 million in back taxes. The legal battle over his methods has even reached Europe.

Turner's two largest companies, Dare To Be Great and Koscot Interplanetary, operated Northeast regional offices at the Granit Hotel in Accord for several weeks in 1971, before abruptly closing those offices and moving to Pennsylvania. Turner, himself, addressed several thousand of his employees during a regional sales meeting at the Granit in 1971, and told reporters at the time that he was being persecuted by law enforcement agencies throughout the United States because of his fight "for the little man."

Turner, 38, now sits in a cramped Frankfurt prison cell, awaiting the outcome of a tug-of-war between his attorneys and British authorities.

The British want him extradited to England to face so far unspecified charges connected with his business dealings there.

But Frankfurt court spokesmen said the hearings would go no further until the British court in Greenwich sent documents spelling out and backing up its charges.

So Turner waits, inmate number 7371-73 in Preungesheim prison, passing the time with prison-hall ping-pong and impressing the desk sergeant as "a very well behaved prisoner."

Turner's enterprises in the United States and abroad once embraced about 70 companies. These have dwindled through mergers and phase-outs, but among those remaining are two that were the prime engines of his fortune and his legal headaches.

These are Koscot Interplanetary Inc., a cosmetics concern, and "Dare to be Great," a confidence-building course that stresses "positive thinking."

Legal officials in the United States say they do not challenge the legitimacy of Turner's cosmetics products or the goals of his "Dare to Be Great" courses.

And while some may be offended by Turner's flamboyant sales techniques—his methods have included revivalist-type meetings with customers following cheerleaders in group chants of "m-m-m-o-n-e-y"—that is not the point either.

The gist of the legal charges against him, legal officials say, is that he runs "pyramid sales operations"—allegedly overselling his assets in an endless chain of customers selling franchises to more customers—failing to register his franchises with securities commissions, and running afoul of tax and mail fraud laws.

Turner and his attorneys deny these charges and have retaliated with a countersuit filed May 17 in Washington, D.C. federal court. It charges the government with harassing him and interfering with his business practice by measures that include illegal wiretaps.

Turner's associates describe his Frankfurt detention and the British warrant as more of this harassment.

"We think this is just more harassment and we think it comes from the United States, from the U.S. Attorney's office," said Leroy Beal, who was with Turner in Frankfurt.

In addition to the government charges against Turner, however, is a multiple lawsuit in which 75,000 customers have filed claims alleging Turner defrauded them through sales schemes involving Koscot, Dare to Be Great and other ventures.

The judge, with Turner's agreement, had worked out a $3 million settlement but some of the plaintiffs are now balking.

The first rule of advertising is to get their attention. The second rule is sustained, repeated advertising. Good advertising doesn't cost... it pays!

It's now or never. Because bank-wide gift promotions will soon be a thing of the past.

Right now is your last chance ever to receive a free gift for opening or adding to a savings account at any of Heritage Savings Banks' three offices.

New state banking regulations prohibit all bank-wide gift promotions after June 30th. From that date on, gift promotions can be conducted only at the grand opening of a new office, and gifts given for new accounts only.

So beat that deadline. Come in to Heritage and claim your free gift from among the 21 shown here for depositing $500 or more. Your selection category depends, of course, on the amount of your deposit.

You'll receive not only a free gift, but the highest interest permitted by law on all accounts. For example, your money earns 5% interest

Village to Meet Town On Paltz Police Problem

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ
The New Paltz Village Board resolved to try again when it voted to meet with the New Paltz Town Board on the question of consolidation of police departments, at its meeting Monday night.

The two boards have been meeting off and on about consolidating the town and village departments ever since the town formed its own department when it became a first class town two years ago. The talks have never gotten beyond the talking stage.

Many town residents have questioned the efficiency of having two separate departments in a town the size of New Paltz. Both the town and the village have said police was one area where consolidation between the two bodies might be possible, but the talks have foundered on personality issues to date.

In another police matter, the village will study a proposal to install police call boxes. According to a New York Telephone Co. proposal outlined at the meeting by Trustee John Logan, the head of the village board's police committee, call boxes would be put up at 13 locations in New Paltz, "nine or 10" of them in the village at a cost of $200 a month. Logan said the proposal needed more study, though he was initially in favor of it; he said it would help the department conduct more foot patrols.

Initially against it was Trustee George Ackert. He said having the call boxes could cause "all kinds of problems."

One of the problems Ackert foresaw was "some hippies getting hold of them and calling up (the police department)."

Logan said Ackert could be right, and that was why he thought the proposal could use more study.

The village's condemnation proceedings against the land needed for its extension of Fulton Road in the village had their day in court earlier this month. Village Attorney J. Philip Zand said he was awaiting the court's decision. The final condemnation will be simplified by a board resolution, adopted Monday night, to approve an exchange of land with Malcolm Brill, who owns land in the path of the proposed extension. The village took some of Brill's land in January 1969 for Fulton Road when it was planned to have the extension take a different route. The 1969 land is to be exchanged for the land needed in 1973.

Village street crews have begun to resurface Main Street. Work began Monday, according to Ackert's report. He said it caused a large traffic tie-up, and Logan pointed out that good work by the village's police cadets kept the jam from being worse than it was.

The board approved the closing of Huguenot Street in the area of the historic Stone Houses on Aug. 4, Stone House Day in New Paltz. The request had been made by the Reformed Church and the Huguenot Historical Society. Residents of the street and emergency vehicles will be allowed to use the street, however. A request for a donation from the village by the New Paltz Rescue Squad was turned down by the board when Zand said it was not legal.

The bids on a new police car came in too late to be legally accepted, according to Logan, and the car will be rebid. Notice of the bid will be sent to all work by the village's police aware of the in the area, including those in Kingston, Poughkeepsie, and Newburgh, in the hope of sparking more competition.

New Bill Limits School Board Propositions

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI)—A bill prohibiting school boards from submitting propositions for the construction of school buildings to the voters more than twice within a 12-month period has been signed into law by Governor Rockefeller.

The measure, which would stop the practice of submitting the same plan to voters "until approval is obtained by simply wearing down voters' resistance," was one of several actions announced today by the governor's office.

Even within the year, a project that was rejected by the voters could not be offered again for 90 days, under terms of the new law.

One of several bills vetoed by the governor would have required 30 per cent of all newly admitted classes in state supported medical schools to agree to practice for five years in an area designated as having a shortage of physicians.

Rockefeller said the bill would have been difficult to administer and in fact might not have applied to any medical school in the state because all receive contributions from private sources as well as state and federal funds.

Other bills signed by the governor would:

—Make the Buffalo City Board of Education an elected body with six members chosen from the aldermanic districts and three at large members.

—Authorize the Montgomery County Board of Supervisors to submit the question of completion of the Okwari Park Project to the voters in November.

—Include the towns of Watertown in Jefferson County and Highmarket in Lewis County in the area covered by a state commission studying land-use in the Tug Hill area and eliminating the Jefferson County towns of Ellisburg and Henderson from the study.

—Authorize the Rochester Genesee Regional Transportation Authority to develop a rapid transit system in the Charlotte-Henrietta corridor.

Bills rejected by Rockefeller included measures that would have:

—Repealed the so-called "cardboard tax" and required super markets to institute a system of unit pricing.

—Permit state residents to buy a $10 parking permit to allow unlimited admission to state parks instead of paying the $1 fee for each visit.

—Exempt admission charges to circuses from state and local sales taxes which range from $350,000 to $500,000 for the state and nearly that amount in revenue for localities.

—Require counties to mail personal notice of a tax sale to the property owner within a week after publication of notice of the sale.

—Authorize cities to contract with private agencies for the construction and operation of recreational facilities and parks.

In actions announced Monday, Rockefeller:

ing the City University of New York with an additional $2.5 million in state aid. The new money brings to $29.1 million the total additional state aid to CUNY in the coming year.

—Approved a bill extending for another year New York City's income tax on residents and earnings tax on non-residents employed in the city.

—Signed a bill creating the New York City Sports Authority to develop sports facilities in the city. He also approved a measure allowing the city to purchase or lease the facilities from the authority.

Hurley Library Association Requests Aid on Expansion

By CARL GRAHAM

HURLEY
The Hurley Library Association has asked the town board to help formulate a plan for expansion of the library's facilities.

Mrs. Seymour Semilof, library board chairman, said at Monday night's town board meeting that the building on Main Street that it now shares with the town justice court is becoming inadequate to meet the growing needs of the community. She said that sharing the building with the justice court worked a special hardship, since lawyers and clients must use the library downstairs for private conferences. She said the library would prefer to remain in the present location because it is centrally situated and close to the Hurley Elementary School.

Town Justice C. H. DuMond, who holds most of the court sessions on the second floor of the stone building, said the situation was just as bad for the town. He said the board had discussed the possibility of a new building to hold town offices and justice court but that there was not enough room on the Main Street lot to permit expansion there.

Councilman Jack Rose suggested that the library could be opened another night to avoid the Tuesday night conflicts with justice court but Mrs. Semilof replied that court was often held two or three nights a week and that the library had to maintain a steady schedule to be effective.

After a discussion it was agreed that the library association and the town board's library committee would attend Thursday night's meeting of the Town Revenue sharing Committee to discuss use of state and federal revenue sharing funds to solve the library problem and also give the town adequate offices in which to conduct its business.

Several residents of the Wayside Drive-Duckridge Road area told the board that there were severe drainage problems in the area. A letter to the town board from Brinnier and Larios, the town's engineering consulting firm, recommended that all culverts in the area be removed and laid to new grades. The firm also recommended that since grades are so flat in the area, a surveying firm be hired to lay out all new grades.

Board members agreed that action would have to be taken along the road, but said that the town could not act until Mrs. Myrtle Kemble, owner of the subdivision, did something about drainage problems on private property there where town crews cannot go.

The town board will meet at 7:30 p.m. on July 10 with the town building inspector, planning board, zoning board, and the Ulster County Department of Health at the Alpine Trailer Park off DeWitt Mills Road. The meeting will be to determine whether owner Reginald Russell has valid permits for all of the 21 trailers now in the park.

The board voted to readvertise for bids on a patrol car for the town constabulary after learning that 1973 models are now out of production. Specifications will be redrawn for a 1974 model and bids will be opened at the July 30 meeting in the West Hurley fire house.

The board voted to notify Woodstock Sanitation Service that it must have approval of the Ulster County Board of Health to collect refuse in Hurley and dump on the Hurley town dump. The firm reportedly has been making collections in the town and using the town dump without permission, the board said.

The town planning board in a letter told the town board that they would review the present subdivision regulations and submit a list of recommended changes at the July 30 meeting. A letter from the Department of Transportation notified the board that a "Drive Carefully—Children at Play" sign on Wildwood Road in West Hurley did not conform to state requirements and told the town to change the wording to something in the state manual governing signs. The matter was referred to Windred Snyder, Highway superintendent, for action.

Emeritus Status For Professors

NEW PALTZ
Two retiring faculty members at the State University College at New Paltz, Dr. James C. Gray and Dr. Robert W. Pyle, have been awarded emeritus status by the Board of Trustees.

Both men were professors of biology who retired June 13. Dr. Gray joined the faculty in 1960 and became the first chairman of the Department of Biology in 1966. Under his direction two science buildings were erected and equipped, and the science staff at the college grew from 15 in 1960 to 40 in 1970.

He earned his B.S. and M.S. degrees from Syracuse University in 1925 and 1927, and his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1929. He taught at Western Reserve University for 30 years before joining the New Paltz staff.

Dr. Pyle, who came to New Paltz in 1950, was dean of the college from 1959 to 1965. He earned a B.S. degree in

Sickles - D'Annunzio Nuptials Announced

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Paula Marlene Sickles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Webster J. Sickles of 284 South Wall Street, Kingston, and John M. D'Annunzio, son of Mrs. Dorothy D'Annunzio of 69 Lucas Avenue, Kingston.

The Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool officiated at the double ring ceremony in Old Dutch Church, Kingston.

Dale Deschler provided traditional wedding selections.

Webster Sickles gave his daughter in marriage. She selected a silk organza gown over silk taffeta. Banks of lace and white buttons accented the bodice and matching lace trimmed the ring neckline and long sleeves. The full skirt was chapel length. A cap of lace held her cathedral veil of French silk illusion. Mrs. D'Annunzio carried a cascade of white phalaenopsis and ferns.

The honor attendant was Mrs. Patricia Lyons, sister of the bride, 5 Ponckhockie Street, Kingston. Attendants were Miss Susan Haver, 8 Fortner Street, Hurley; Mrs. Joan Vogt, 123 Second Avenue, Kingston; and Miss Ellen Janasiewicz, 56 West Chester Street, Kingston.

For her attendants, the bride selected a color scheme of pink and orchid. The gowns featured crystalline bodices, ruffled necklines and long fitted sleeves. The attendants wore double bow headpieces which held their bouffant veils and they carried pompons and baby's breath.

Robert Fisher of Rockville, Md., served as best man. Ushering were Craig Byrnes, Keith Byrnes, both of Schneckady; and Vincent Sikles of Rosendale.

A reception was given at Kurta's Restaurant, Route 28, Glenford.

The bride, a 1970 alumna of Kingston High School, is now attending Ulster County Community College. She is employed by Kingston Hospital as a licensed practical nurse.

Her husband, an alumnus of KHS, holds an Associate degree in Accounting from Albany Business College and a BS degree in Business Administration from Steed College of Technology, Johnson City, Tenn. Mr. D'Annunzio is an office employee of P. J. Gallagher Sons and is serving as first vice president of Ulster County Young Republican Club.

After a wedding trip to Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. D'Annunzio will make their home at a 69 Lucas Avenue, Kingston.

ber and secretary; Jane Scott, vice president; and Vivian Neer, former president. Dorothy Sperle, treasurer, is not pictured. A family day and picnic was recently held in honor of the occasion. (Freeman photo by Powell)

Centerfolds Are Unstapling Marriage

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune. N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Since the beginning of our marriage four years ago, I told my husband I wouldn't tolerate "Playboy" or any other such magazine in our home, and if he wanted to read that kind of stuff he would have to leave it at his office.

We moved recently and I found a stack of these girly magazines in the attic. My husband laughed about it and said he read them when I was asleep or out.

Now he continues buying these magazines which keeps in his drawer. I told him to remove them or I would throw them out. Well, he didn't, and I did. Now he tells me I owe him $8 for his destroyed magazines, and he refuses to give me his paycheck until I pay him the $8.

Am I wrong or is he? He knew my feelings, and he was warned. He says those magazines belonged to him and I had no right to destroy them.

If you want to publish this, go ahead. There must be others with this problem.

HATES FILTH
DEAR HATES: You are wrong. Your husband has a right to read what he wishes, and to keep whatever he wants in his drawer. And if you don't quit invading his privacy and destroying his property, it could cost you more than $8.

DEAR ABBY: Both my husband and I are nearly 30 years old. We've been married for six beautiful years, and we have not had any children because we just plain do not want any. We have given the matter a great deal of serious consideration and have concluded that having children is not all it's cracked up to be. Maybe we're wrong, but that is the way we feel about it.

The problem: Both his mother and mine have been hounding us for some time now with: "When are you going to make me a grandmother?" The answer, of course, is: "Never!" But how do you tell two women who have done little else in their lives but produce children without inviting a fight?

We have been told that we are "selfish," that it's "unnatural" to want no children, and maybe we should see a psychiatrist. I'm sure you get the picture.

So how do you tell two would-be grandmothers that whether we want children or not is strictly our own business, and even tho it's a disappointment to them, we would rather not discuss it?

CHILDLESS AND SATISFIED
DEAR CHILDLESS: You

seem sufficiently articulate to get the message across. When the subject comes up, simply say that you prefer not to discuss it. And don't try to defend your position or you will be in for an endless debate.

DEAR ABBY: I know I shouldn't think about myself so much, but I feel so big and ugly and dumb. In other words, I just don't have any confidence in myself.

I'm 5 foot 8 and weigh 140. I have mousy brown hair cut in a shag, which I hate on me. But I also hated my hair when it was long. I'm 24 and married. Everything I buy I want to return as soon as I get it home. Everything I cook I feel like throwing out, and I never feel like I look right in anything I put on.

All this lack of confidence in myself is driving me nuts. I hate for people to look me in the face because I think they're looking at my nose. I know I have shoulders like a football player, but I'm not any bigger than my sister, and she always looks nice.

Please help me, Abby. I'm so miserable.

ONE BIG MESS
DEAR ONE: You can't be nearly as big a "mess" as you think you are. At least one man must have thought you were pretty special or he wouldn't have married you.

What you need is a better self-image. Start with getting your psychological house in order. Your doctor can recommend a counselor, (and a diet if you feel "fat"), and remember, the longest march in the world started with a step — so get going.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. (Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 9:07 a.m. WKNY-1490)

Warning to Stores About Detergents

In a strongly worded warning to retailers throughout New York Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz has disclosed that detergents containing phosphates were still being openly sold and exposed for sale in violation of law. The new law, which took effect June 1, 1973, prohibits the sale or exposure for sale of any detergents containing phosphates, except for detergents used for automatic dishwashers, restaurants and dairies.

Attorney General Lefkowitz stated: "The investigation has revealed widespread violations of this law in a variety of stores throughout the State. This important law, enacted to prevent the choking and pollution of lakes and rivers, was enacted in 1971. The detergent manufacturers and retailers have had two years to prepare for the ban on phosphates effective June 1, 1973. There is no excuse for any phosphate-laden detergents to be on shelves anywhere in New York State. My Environmental Protection Bureau intends to see that this important legislation is vigorously enforced."

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE
IF YOU'RE FIT TO BE TIED — DYE IT!

Dear Heloise:
I had several sets of older white sheets, tops and bottoms, that were not as white as I'd like, so rather than weaken the cloth by bleaching, I decided to "tie-dye" them!

I grabbed the sheet in the center, tied a strip of old material from the rag bag around the center and kept wrapping it around and around till I got to the outside edges, then fastened it tight.

One set I dyed tangerine, another set olive green. I dried them in the dryer, still tied, then wet them again, untied them and dried again.

Now it's a pleasure to go to bed in my colored sheets. Young brides, who would rather have colored, and we older grandmothers, with leftovers, will enjoy this idea, I hope!

An Ardent Reader
LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:
I just can't believe it, I lost a pound today, while helping my husband stack the hay.

But two pounds I gained that very same day, while helping him put our delicious dinner away.

Heloise, I just can't lose for gaining!

W.W.

Dear Heloise:
The front pulling wheels on my self-propelled lawn mower had worn smooth.

So I took a rasp and cut grooves one-fourth inch apart across each of the front wheels, just like when the mower was new.

The traction is now as good as new, and I still have lots of rubber before I will have to buy new wheels.

Thirty minutes work saved me at least eight dollars and a trip to the dealer!

How about that?

Bill H.

Dear Heloise:
Every year my four boys want to buy their teacher a present at the end of school. I always had trouble getting them to save money.

We put each child's name on a peanut can. Each week they put half of their allowance in their "bank." At the end of school they have their own money to buy a nice gift for their teacher. (Also they have money for Christmas!)

It has helped even our 6-year-old to learn how important it is to save for things he wants.

Y.R.

Dear Heloise:
With camping and vacation season now with us, my hint is for camping families with preschoolers.

After our small daughter got lost in a huge campground on our vacation (she can say her name but people can't always understand her), we started putting sticker name tags on her every day that say, "Hello. My name is Holly Gusse. We're camping on Lot 12."

The sticker tags are best as they can be thrown away when we move and a new tag made a the next camp site.

Nancy Gusse
Dear Heloise:
No more broken fingernails pulling those stubborn pins out of price tags.

Slip the teeth of a small comb around the head and pull out the pin!

Try it and see!

Orphanage Supporters Seek Aid

An Lac Supporters of New Paltz are finishing their second year of fund raisers to help feed 360 children now housed at An Lac Orphanage in Saigon. It is one of 133 Orphanages in South Vietnam but this one was co-founded by an American, Dr. Tom Dooley. It was in 1954 that Dr. Dooley met the directress, Madame Ngai and he helped to locate the refugee from the North and all "her family" in an abandoned French barracks. It has been mainly through the efforts of Americans that An Lac has been able to function.

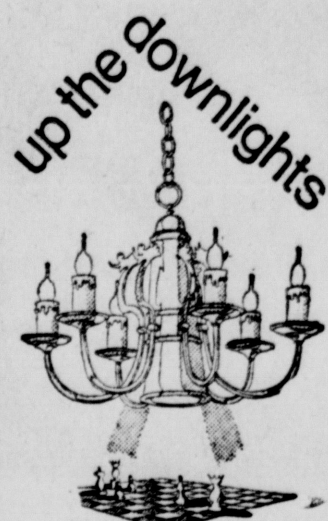

Betty Moul Tisdale is president and her husband Pat is chairman of the board for an Lac Orphanage, Inc. They are located in Georgia and people throughout the United States send checks to help feed the orphans of war. The Tisdales address is Box 804, Whitesville Road, Columbus, Georgia 31904.

new interest in the children of the recent war. Green stamps are very valuable to the group and any donated would be appreciated. They may be sent to Mrs. J. F. Burke, 5 Andrea Drive New Paltz, 12561.

The stamps will be used to purchase a car for Madame Ngai. Another continuing program is the saving of white star (only) Pepsi caps. Each cap is worth 1/3 of a cent when returned to the plant in Newburgh. Several checks have been sent to the orphanage as a result of this project.

At present, the Supporters seek aid in two areas, a Garage Sale and a Crafts Sale. Both are being held in conjunction with The Tom Dooley Heritage, Inc. in New York. Donations are being requested for both fund raisers. Anyone with items for the garage sale, should contact Mrs. Burke in New Paltz. No clothing is needed. Handmade items are requested for the Crafts Sale to be held in September. An Lac Supporters can only continue their efforts if people in the community support them.

HATS OFF — Cleveland pitcher Gaylord Perry underwent an umpire's inspection again Monday night — this time at the request of the Yankees — after he was accused of throwing an illegal pitch. In photo at left, umpire Lou DiMuro checks Perry with Yankee manager Ralph Houk (background) and batter Bobby Murcer watching. At right, Houk raises his hands in disgust.

after DiMuro said he found nothing wrong. Yanks found plenty wrong, losing the argument and then the ballgame, 4-2. With Milwaukee losing to Baltimore, New York maintained its two-game lead in the American League East standings. (UPI)

Greasy Kid's Stuff Tames Yanks

CLEVELAND (AP) — Does Cleveland Indian Pitcher Gaylord Perry use that greasy kid stuff or doesn't he? On the ball that is.

When Perry is losing, the opposition ignores it. When Perry is winning, the opposition calls for a shutdown inspection.

Monday night he was winning and New York Yankee Manager Ralph Houk called the cops.

The umpires didn't find anything, as usual, and Perry went on to collect his eighth victory of the season as the Indians defeated the Yankees 4-2.

In the eighth inning, when the Indians on top 4-1, Horace Clarke was called out at that plate in a close play. That started Houk's boiler steaming. Bobby Murcer came to the plate and was soon complaining that Perry was putting a foreign substance on the ball.

Murcer rolled a foul down the third base line. Coach Dick Howser quickly picked up the ball and charged plate umpire Lou DiMuro with an accusation. DiMuro threw Howser out of the game.

"I thought he was making too much of a commotion," DiMuro said.

Houk continued the argument and made DiMuro inspect Perry's hat, glove, pants and hands.

"I'm 99 per cent sure Perry put something on that ball," Murcer said. "And the umpires

One Inning Too Many for Mets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Abner Doubleday and Alexander Cartwright and those other oldtimers dreamed up this game of baseball, they decided that nine innings would be just about right for their little invention.

That was one inning too many for the New York Mets and that thump you just heard was Yogi Berra's ball club landing in the National League East basement.

The Mets led Chicago 2-0 for eight innings Monday night but the Cubs rallied for three runs in the ninth to take the ball game, 3-2.

But the Cubs, who continue to lead the N. East by a comfortable margin, are taking nothing for granted.

"We've traveled this road before," Cubs' captain Ron Santo said. "It's very early yet."

burgh's tiebreaking run in the fourth inning of the second game, said the Pirates would get straightened away yet.

"Don't worry about us," said Stargell. "We'll get along. If the guys on this club had never played together or weren't used to winning, maybe we'd be in trouble. The point is, we've been together a long time and we've been winning for a long time so there's no reason for us to keep on playing the lousy baseball we've played so far."

Rookie Mike Rogodzinski continued his hot pinch hitting, drilling a two-run shot in the eighth inning to lift Philadelphia past St. Louis. It was Rogodzinski's seventh hit this season, all of them in a pinch hitting role. As a starter, he's 0-for-18.

Allen Leads AL Voting

NEW YORK (UPI) — First baseman Dick Allen of the Chicago White Sox is still the most popular man in the American League — at least according to the fans' voting for the major league all-star game.

Allen has received 216,146 votes in the latest tabulation, nearly 15,000 more than Boston catcher Carlton Fisk, the next most popular vote-getter, and more than 50,000 ahead of his nearest first base rival, Kansas City slugger John Mayberry.

Fisk, running more than 90,000 votes ahead of Detroit's Bill Freehan, has the biggest lead of any player, however.

The leaders in the race for the other starting positions are Cookie Rojas of Kansas City at second base, Brooks Robinson of Baltimore at third, Bert Campaneris of Oakland at shortstop and Reggie Jackson of Oakland. Bobby Murcer of New York and Amos Otis of Kansas City in the outfield.

Rodriguez Wins Garden Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Jose Rodriguez of New York pounded out an unanimous 10-round decision over Guerrero "Ray" Chavez of Venezuela in a featured middleweight bout at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum Monday night.

Rodriguez, 151, pounds used an accurate left jab and solid right hand counter to outbox the 147½-pound Chavez.

Referee George Coyle and judge Ray Kozak scored it 5-4 and judge John Maschio tabbed it 6-4, all for Rodriguez.

The victory raised Rodriguez' record to 21-3-2 while Chavez dropped to 21-3-2.

Wimbledon Still Attracts the Fans

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — It has been said before but it's worth saying again—the Wimbledon championships are unique in the tennis world.

Seventy-three of the greatest names in men's tennis boycotted the tournament this year, and yet the first-day crowd was just as big as though all of them were on the courts instead of a bumper crop of unknowns.

"There are about 80 players out there I don't even know," said one veteran umpire, "and I get around."

The world's top women, who have not pulled out, take the courts today, but Monday it was all men—men with names like Amritraj, Cajuole, and Pugaev.

Nevertheless the opening day program drew nearly 23,000 to the sunny, strawberries-and-cream 89th all-England lawn tennis championships—just as many as passed through the turnstiles when Stan Smith, Ken Rosewall, Arthur Ashe, Rod Laver and company were competing for gold and glory, in that order.

Not all of it was vintage tennis. There were no upsets. Only a handful of matches produced memorable play. But you couldn't prove it by the crowds overflowing the stands, sipping tea and promenading in the annual fashion show which makes Wimbledon as much a social occasion as a sporting one.

These were the highlights in a day of lowlights:

—The Duchess of Kent, leading a standing ovation—a rare royal gesture—when Ilie Nastase of Romania, one of three members of the Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP) not boycotting the tournament, walked onto the immaculate center court as No. 1 seed to open the tournament.

Nastase, who had "other things on my mind" all last week, polished off Hans-Joachim Pflitz of West Germany, 6-3, 7-5, 6-2.

—Bjorn Borg of Sweden, making his first big-time appearance here at only 17, who walked on the center court to face India's veteran Premjit Lal and served four straight aces.

Borg, sixth seeded after the ATP pullout, won in three sets, but only after an agonizing 20-18 tiebreaker in the third. The score was 6-3, 6-4, 9-8.

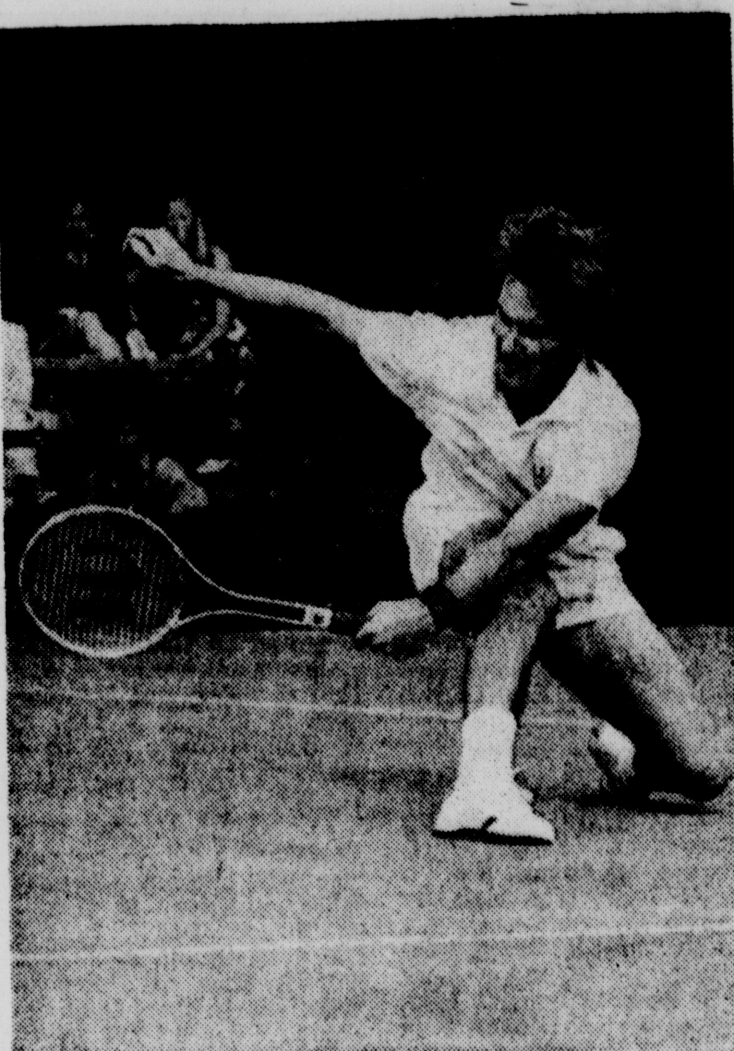

Jimmy Connors of Bellville, Ill., seeded fifth and the top-ranked American in the tournament, ran out a powerful 6-4, 6-3, 6-4 win over strong British southpaw Mark Farrell.

Roger Taylor of Britain, the No. 3 seed, and all the other seeded men won without sensation.

But the crowd was pleased, and it was plentiful. Ticket touts forlornly peddling "center court seats, guy, real cheap" outside the grounds Monday should find business better today since Monday's crowds found Wimbledon as it was: a "shade the more competitive of the two."

The $125,000 race, with $75,000 going to the winner, $30,000 to second and $20,000 to third, will be broadcast live on ABC-TV's Wide World of Sports.

My Gallant and Our Native each lost twice to Secretariat during his surge through the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Match Race Appears Set

CHICAGO (AP) — The special match race between Triple Crown winner Secretariat and two other 3-year-olds, shrouded in uncertainty this past week, appeared finalized with the confirmation that Our Native would compete.

There had been doubts Our Native would run in the race June 30 at Arlington Park, but track spokesmen said Monday that Tom Pritchard, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Pritchard, one of the horse's three owners, announced Our Native would compete.

Last Friday, Mrs. Pritchard said she did not want to start Our Native and Dr. Ed Thomas, the other owner, agreed.

Earlier, Neil Hellman announced that Linda's Chief would not run and Arthur Appleton offered My Gallant and Philip Teinowitz offered Blue Chip Dan.

Arlington President John F. Loomie accepted My Gallant because it was felt he would be a "shade the more competitive of the two."

Finley said "I don't know where I go from here" after the decision in which the league counted 13 votes against the request, two in favor and one absent. The Philadelphia franchise was not represented.

Finley kidded about the matter and said "I'll probably never know who voted along with me. Through the years a lot of them will say they were on my side so I can't cuss them all out."

New Format for Team Golf

ACCORD
Rondout Country Club plans a revised format for its second annual Ulster County Team Championship Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 4-5. Tournament Director Mike Scudder has announced.

The tournament will be limited to thirty (30) two-man teams, playing 36 holes of best-ball medal play over two days. The maximum combined team handicap will be 18 strokes.

"Since this is a scratch tournament, it is geared to only the relatively low handicap players," Scudder explained. "We are hoping to make this one of the major tests of golf in the county. We have expanded the field, activities and merchandise prizes."

The entry fee of $25 per team includes tournament fees, merchandise prizes, trophies and Saturday and Sunday afternoon buffets.

Deadline for filing entries is Sunday, July 29. Entry blanks will be available at all area golf pro shops.

Six Ulster Golfers Vie In NY State Qualifier

NEWBURGH
Six Ulster county golfers are among the 75 mid-Hudson area players who will compete in the New York State Amateur sectional qualifying round at the Otterkill Country Club on Friday, July 6, chairman Bill Bogle of Poughkeepsie has announced.

The large field of qualifiers at Otterkill is due to relaxed entry rules by the New York State Amateur Golf Association. For many years, the competition was limited to players with handicaps of five or under. The regulation was relaxed in recent years.

Heading the Ulster contingent will be Charles Stauffer, a 2-handicap player out of Locust Tree Golf and Country Club at New Paltz. Also listed are Werner Kolln (4) and Alex J. Manew (9) of Wiltwyck Golf Club; Eric Krieger (3) of Shawangunk; Phil Buchanan (7) of The Granit and Ed Lattin Jr. (6) of Lake Mohonk.

Ray Billows of Dutchess, a seven-time state champion, will not have to qualify. The seventy four other entrants will be vying for 18 places allocated to this area. The field of 128 players plus the automatic qualifiers will play in the state championships at the Concord in Lake Kiamasha on July 17-20. Four rounds of medal play will determine the new champion of the Empire State.

The field is cut after the first two days of play to the low 30 and ties or anyone within 10 strokes of the leader.

Henry T. DeNero of Bearsville received the Mason Smith Award as the top student in general management at recent graduation exercises of the Stanford Graduate School of Business.

DeNero was one of 294 men and women who received the master of business administration degree in ceremonies on the campus. The graduating class included 19 women, largest number in the school's history, and nine students who completed the joint law-business program.

The Business School also awarded Ph. D. degrees in business to 18 students who completed studies during the 1972-73 academic year.

DeNero plans to join McKinsey and Company in Los Angeles. The Mason Smith Award honors a former member of the Business School faculty.

Highland Freedom Shrine

HIGHLAND
The Exchange Club of Highland, at the Annual Awards Assembly at Highland High School on June 8, 1973, replaced 12 of the worn and deteriorated Freedom Shrine Plaques and re-dedicated the Freedom Shrine which is to be moved to a new location near the principal's office at the school.

Lewis C. DiStasi Jr., Highland attorney and Freedom Shrine chairman of the club, presented the 12 new plaques to another fellow Exchange Highland High School Principal William G. Miller Jr., and reminded the students that the 28 plaques in the Freedom Shrine represented the identity of our country's character as embodied in the writings of the greatest men in our country's history.

The Freedom Shrine, a project only of the National Exchange Club, contains writings which are landmarks in our country's history. They are exact replicas of the writings which are enlarged and placed on laminated wall plaques so as to be easily read by large numbers of people in public places. Local Exchange Clubs all over the nation have purchased and placed Freedom Shrines in schools and other public buildings in order that the messages of inspiration and patriotism contained in the Club in 1966, before the local Exchange Club of Highland was chartered. The Exchange Club of Highland installed a complete Freedom Shrine in April, 1972 at the K-4 Elementary School, Highland.

HENRY HUDSON

Storm King Graduate

CORNWALL-ON-HUDSON
Henry Hudson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hudson, of 1 Duzine Road, New Paltz, was among the 46 seniors and other outstanding students honored recently in the 106th graduation at Storm King School.

Hudson wound up a four-year career at the school with special distinction in athletics. An outstanding wrestler and top man on the varsity golf team, he was awarded the Pentagonal Cup for having earned more than five varsity letters in his career. He will study science at the University of New Haven.

Graduation ceremonies were featured by an unusual new "tradition" established four years ago. Instead of a principal speaker, the audience of parents and friends heard each senior make his own commencement statement.

Boys from 13 states, the District of Columbia, and Ecuador were among those graduating before an audience of some 500 persons at the outdoor ceremony.

Sidney Poitier May Face Albany Hearing

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Actor Sidney Poitier may be the man who comes to Albany, not for dinner but to fetch his financial records for a court hearing.

An attempt by Poitier to have his former wife's application for financial judgment dismissed was thwarted Monday by a ruling of the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court.

The appeals court said a hearing should be held to determine what, if any, arrears Poitier owes on support payments to Mrs. Juanita Poitier and her four daughters.

Under a 1965 Mexican divorce agreement, Poitier was to pay a percentage of his income, up to $101,500 a year, to his wife and children.

Poitier's attorney had argued that the Domestic Relations Law precluded judgment based upon an unspecified sum. Mrs. Poitier, a Columbia County resident, said she could not determine the amount she claims is overdue because she had not had access to the actor's financial records.

Three Men Are Arrested

CATSKILL
Three Albany men were arrested on multiple charges on the New York State Thruway in the Town of Catskill early today when a quantity of heroin and a weapon were allegedly found in their possession during a routine traffic check.

Taken into custody by Thruway State Police were Daniel Johnson, 27, Leon Johnson, 18, and James Willie Moses, 24, all of Albany. They were charged with possession of dangerous drugs in the fourth degree, possession of a weapon and possession of a hypodermic instrument.

Police said an unloaded .22-caliber starter's pistol converted to an eight-shot revolver was allegedly found in the vehicle.

All were confined in Greene County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bail each following arraignment.

TEEN FORUM

DEPRESSED: (Q.) I am 15 years old and ugly (at least, that's what people tell me). I am constantly depressed. Even when I am happy I am depressed. Sometimes I get myself smashed just so I won't have to think about killing myself. I think I am really cracked. About my parents — do they care? Sure they do. About me passing my courses. But that's all. My feelings mean absolutely nothing to them. They say I'll thank them when I am older for pushing me through school. But the thing is, they're gonna push me off a ledge. I think everybody hates me. Why not? I can't stand myself. To wake up in the morning is painful because I know I have to suffer through another day. Day by day I want more and more to escape the world. What can I do? — Lonely in Connecticut

(A.) You may be depressed, but not badly so. If you were, you could not write such a strong letter. A deeply depressed person has no strength.

Try to get the chip off your shoulder. Try to stop pushing people, especially your parents, away. Talk to them honestly about how you really feel. Ask them to help you. Your problem may be purely emotional, or it may have physical causes. Your parents can help you find a way to cure it, or at least alleviate it, if you will let them.

SAYING NO: (Q.) This girl really has a crush on me. But I'm not too crazy about her. She has been on drugs and has been caught with them.

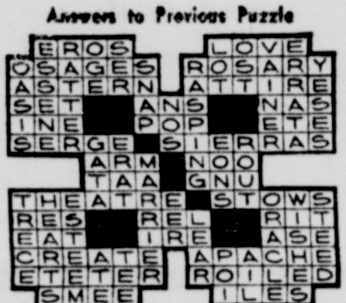

When I talk to her on the phone she sounds drunk. But she says she isn't on drugs now and doesn't drink. I almost believe her. Just the same I don't like her except as a friend. I am afraid to tell her I don't like her. What do I do? — Crowded in North Carolina

(A.) You do not have to tell her you don't like her. Tell her instead, "I like you, but only as a friend." If what you say in your letter is true then that statement is true. It says what you want to say, but in a kind way.

(Jean Adams reads and considers every letter, but she regrets that she cannot answer each personally. Mail your questions and comments to Jean Adams, care of The Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001.)

No book by Fred Karpin would be complete unless he showed a couple of hands where someone threw away an ace as the only way to make a contract or defeat a contract depending on whether or not the hero was defending or playing the dummy.

In today's hand played in a rubber bridge game at New York's Cavendish Club, Sonny Moyse, former editor of the Bridge World, found himself in a rather unsound six-heart contract.

Not that we don't all get into worse contracts and no one can blame Sonny for his six bid. West opened the eight of clubs. After a low club was played from dummy, East played the 10. Sonny thought of ducking but decided that the club lead was a singleton and he had better take the trick.

He also saw a way to make the contract assuming he was right. He simply played out a few rounds of trumps; led a diamond to dummy's ace; cashed dummy's king and discarded his ace of spades. Then he ruffed a diamond and led the four of spades. West was in with the king, but had to lead another spade to lead Sonny get to dummy and discard his losing clubs. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Supplementary News Service

NEW YORK (AP) — It may sound odd, but the NBC, CBS and ABC television networks regularly transmit news, feature and sports stories you'll rarely see on the networks' regular evening news programs.

Okay, so where do the stories go? They show up on 379 television stations as part of local news programs that start before or after the "NBC Nightly News," "CBS Evening News" or "ABC Evening News." They also pop up on local weekend news programs.

The networks transmit them—at a fee—as a supplementary television news service to help local stations fill their news programs with tape and film stories from other cities, regions and even nations.

At NBC, the service is called NPS, or "News Program Service." At CBS, it's called "The Late Afternoon News." ABC calls it the "Daily Electronic Feed." All operate essentially the same way.

During the afternoon, they tell subscribing stations by closed-circuit teletype what stories they have or expect to have in the daily video "feed." They also give the gist of the stories and their approximate length—90 seconds or two minutes is the average.

The entire package is sent at 5 p.m. EDT. It's taped at local stations, where editors and newsmen inspect the tapes and decide whether to use them. The networks also offer a late-evening feed when warranted.

CBS has a 20-minute package it sends Monday through Friday. NBC and ABC each offer 30-minute feeds Sunday through Friday. The material they send comes from network news teams and those of affiliates.

NBC and ABC include in their service reviews of plays and movies. Gene Shalit reviews for NBC; Kevin Sanders, for ABC.

The oldest of the three services is NPS, which NBC cranked up in February 1960 to give local affiliates "material they otherwise wouldn't be able to get," according to NPS' acting chief, Jim Aldrich.

"Previously, each station couldn't afford to have a correspondent in Paris or London or Washington, and this is where sports coverage on a regular basis," he said.

"We also emphasized sports," he said. "It was one of our very big selling points and always has been. It's one of the few ways local stations can get national sports network news programs."

House Turns to New Anti-War Amendments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, after joining the Senate to cut off all available funds for U.S. bombing in Cambodia, turned today to amendments that would block any new money for the military activity.

One proposal would prohibit any new spending for the bombing. Another would ban use of new spending for any U.S. war activities in Indochina.

A choice between the two was offered in a continuing resolution before the House that would give the Pentagon and other federal agencies stop-gap authority to continue spending until Congress passes their regular appropriations bills.

The amendments were defeated in the House Appropriations Committee, but bombing opponents announced they would carry the effort to the House floor today.

The House shouted voice approval Monday of Senate-passed prohibition against using any available funds for "combat activities in, over or from off the shores of Cambodia, or in or over Laos by U.S. forces."

President Nixon has 10 days after he receives the $3.4-billion supplemental money bill containing the cutoff to either halt the bombing or veto the bill. If he does not act within that time the bill becomes law.

The measure is expected to go to the President before the end of the week.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield vowed that if Nixon vetoes the bill he will not get the $3.4 billion, because the Senate will not reapprove the money.

But House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said he will urge President Nixon to veto the bill. Ford said he still is looking for some way to give the President more time for bombing as part of Nixon's efforts to force a Cambodia cease-fire.

Ford said that secret negotiations were under way to seat a stable government in Cambodia, adding this would bring about the cease-fire.

GREETINGS FOR THE QUEEN — Queen Elizabeth is greeted at Toronto's International Airport by a group of youngsters holding a welcome sign and waving flags. The Queen and Prince Philip began an 11-day tour of Canada on Monday. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Royal Family in Canadian Tour

TORONTO (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip arrived at a 21-gun salute Monday to begin a 10-day tour of Canada. Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau was the first to greet the royal couple as 2,000 persons cheered them at the airport. The queen wore a wide-brimmed orange hat, yellow print dress and white gloves. The prince appeared tanned and fit.

Gov. Gen. Roland Michener accompanied the queen as she walked among the spectators, stopping to chat with children and elderly war veterans.

Then the party drove off in a limousine along the Lake Ontario waterfront where an estimated 60,000 persons were waiting to catch a glimpse of royalty.

The queen is the symbolic head of state in Canada, represented by the appointed governor general. But Trudeau's government actually runs the country.

As the queen left London, the British Broadcasting Corp. carried a report on Canada's cooling attitude toward the crown, reflected in a decision to omit the queen's head from currency and stamps.

Behind the cheers and flag waving, the Daily Express added, there would be "the growing feeling that there is no place for her as head of the Canadian state."

Meat, Poultry Shortages Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has predicted shortages of meat and poultry in the United States, but other economic officials say the possibility of food rationing is "extremely unlikely."

Butz told the Senate Banking Committee Monday that President Nixon needs standby authority to reduce agriculture exports to solve the shortage problem.

He said the squeeze between high feed prices and the price freeze is hurting poultry raisers, forcing hog producers to sell off breeding stock, and causing cattlemen to keep beef off the market.

Meanwhile, the President's Council of Economic Advisers said it was concerned about shortages, but that rationing within the next year is unlikely. The council said the freeze on some food, including broiler chickens, may have to be eased.

Butz said that the granting of the export control authority would prompt producers to expand since they would have government assurance that their feed would be sufficient and at lower prices in the future.

Economic council chairman Herbert Stein said his group has read "lots of horror stories" about producers killing chickens because they are too expensive to raise. He said the council also was concerned about shortages of eggs, tomatoes and other products.

Turning to gasoline prices, Stein said some 1,106 service stations have had to roll back prices as a result of consumer complaints that the stations were violating the freeze.

The overcharges averaged two cents a gallon at 741 independent and 365 company-owned stations, the council said.

Stein said the administration still hopes to have an official announcement on Phase 4 controls by mid-July.

Violence in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Two persons died from assassins' bullets and two executives were kidnapped Monday as the country's new president was proclaiming "violence has no place or excuse in Argentina today."

Shortly after that shooting, Ford met a guerrilla demand for payment of $2 million to Argentine charities in return for a guerrilla promise not to harm any more of the company's employees.

Mario Baratella, vice president of the Argentine branch of the Bank of Italy, was abducted Monday outside his home in suburban Buenos Aires, police said. Also kidnapped was Pedro Cazachkov, head of a food products company who was taken from his house by armed men. His company reported a $700,000 ransom was demanded for his safe return.

Argentina's various guerrilla groups — some Peronist — have kept up their extremist activities under the Campora government, limiting their targets to "monopolies and the armed forces."

"The time of violence has no place or excuse in Argentina today," Campora said in his 23-minute television address to the nation Monday night. He said groups "taking the law into their own hands must stop. This government will firmly exercise its authority to assure orderly change."

Campora's words echoed those made Thursday by his mentor, former President Juan D. Peron, who returned to Argentina after 18 years in exile and called in a speech for single Argentine.

Peron's return Wednesday touched off a gunbattle among rival Peronist groups in a crowd of two million who had turned out for a welcome rally. At least 14 died and more than 200 were wounded.

Police said former Peronist Congressman Alberto Arnesto, 52, was shot to death while leaving a movie theater in Campana, 30 miles from Buenos Aires. Police said if the motive proves political, it would be the first such assassination since Peronist President Hector J. Campora took power a month ago.

Two military men and two union leaders were assassinated earlier in the year before Campora took office. Since the beginning of the year, more than 60 persons have been kidnapped and six of them are still being held for ransom.

Monday's other death was that of Argentine-born Ford Motor Co. accountant Luis Giovannelli, 34, who succumbed to bullet wounds suffered when leftist guerrillas shot him in a kidnap attempt outside the Buenos Aires Ford plant May 21.
